GRANTS

LCDC serves a population of 280,000 in rural West Texas, addressing the mental health needs of inmates from Lubbock County and surrounding areas lacking adequate resources. Since joining the Stepping Up Initiative in 2016, LCDC has committed to reducing mental illness in its inmate population. However, current infrastructure lacks integrated data systems to evaluate policy effectiveness. This project aims to assess data capacity, develop an integrated data interface, and evaluate existing policies to enhance mental health screening, diversion efforts, and the feasibility of a mental health court. Findings will inform policy improvements and support a more effective mental health strategy.
