English 3513: Advanced Grammar

2024 Fall PY201A TR 9:30 p.m.-10:50 p.m. | 11434

Discussion and practice of techniques for the grammatical analysis of English language structures. Particularly, we will exam the micro-units of language. syntax, and the problems of modern English grammar. While you do not need to be an ELAR major to take this class, we will cover grammatical pedagogy. General English majors may find this useful if they ever decide to teach ESL/EFL, edit, or pursue graduate degrees in English.

Course Objectives

The emphasis will be on language use. The course will also allow you to apply grammatical analyses in ways that are most meaningful for you – e.g., teaching situations, analysis of discourse, your workplace, etc. Specifically, the course is designed to:

- develop your understanding of English structures and functions;
- give you practice with analytical techniques used in grammatical studies and with applying those techniques to authentic language;
- help you become acquainted topics that cover particular areas of grammar and with the challenges presented to ESL/EFL learners and ESL/EFL teachers by those particular grammar topics.
- help you form an understanding of the general issues related to English grammar and grammar errors, and help you learn to provide error feedback.

Assessment

Quizzes	(4 x 20 pts each)	80 points
Tests	(3 x 100 pts each)	300 points
Final Exam		100 points
In-class exercises & participation		50 points
Short Paper		100 points

Quizzes:

You will have four quizzes throughout the semester that tests what we have covered in class. All material will be drawn from grammatical instruction conducted throughout the week. Quizzes will be between 10-15 questions to test knowledge and help identify any issues you will need to work on.

Tests:

Tests will be a combination of old material drawn from the quizzes and new material covered since the last quiz.

Final Exam:

It’s what it sounds like: a final exam that tests your acquisition of class material. It will be a combination of old material from the quizzes/tests as well as new material from the last couple weeks of class.

In-class Exercises & Participation:

You're expected to ask questions and participate in class. Sometimes, we will focus on in-class activities that will ask you to think of a creative way to solve a grammatical problem or to teach us a new way of thinking about a grammatical mistake.

Short Paper or Pedagogical exercise:

This course will require one short paper (4-5 pages, double-spaced, MLA format) that asks you to read the debates concerning grammar and writing instruction in the field of writing studies. Or you can design a lesson plan (2-3 pages, single-spaced) to teach a certain grammar knowledge to your chosen audience, such as passive voice, verb tense, and relative clause, etc.

To do the short paper, you will find 4-5 articles on JSTOR from either College English, College Composition and Communication, or the English Journal. These articles must be different from the weekly readings we cover in class, although you can refer to them in your paper. However, you must pick new readings. An assignment sheet will be posted on D2L a few weeks before it is due.

Your final grade will be converted to a letter grade as follows:

A 89.5-100	B 79.5-89.4	C 69.5-79.4	D 59.5-69.4	D< 59.4
------------	-------------	-------------	-------------	---------

Attendance & Participation

- If you have legitimate reasons for not being able to attend class, please inform me prior to these absences so that arrangements, if warranted, can be made.
- It is possible to miss up to 1 class without having your grade adversely affected. I will drop your lowest participation grade when calculate your overall participation grade.
- 3 tardies equal one absence. If you are late or leave early and are not present for at least 30 minutes of class, you will be marked absent.
- I also reserve the right to mark you as absent if you are not actively "present" in class, which may be indicated not actively participating in class activities or discussion or zoning out of class by zoning into your phone or other devices.

Plagiarism Policy:

In this class, we will define plagiarism as the use of someone else's thoughts, words, ideas, or lines of argument in one's own work without appropriate documentation (a parenthetical citation at the end and a listing in "Works Cited," speaker tags and credentials as needed), whether that material is used in a quotation, paraphrase, or summary. Plagiarism is a theft of intellectual property and will not be accepted.

In any cases when the instructor suspects the use of uncredited sources on the class essay or exams, a zero will be awarded as grade and the writer invited to discuss the composition of the materials at hand. Considering late-in-term work, we might not have time for such a conversation, and so the grade will stand. Thus, let's quote and cite with care, please.

Use of Artificial Intelligence Technology

It's a grammar course. Just don't use them to write your paper.

Technology

Students in this course will need a working and reliable computer and internet access that will allow the use of D2L course site tools, Google Drive, and any online resources provided. No special software is required but students will need access to MS Office products.

Professionalism

Members of this class are expected to treat one another with courtesy, professionalism, and respect. Repeated unprofessional, rude, or inappropriate behavior can result in points being deducted from a student's final grade for the course per instance of such behavior.

Accommodations

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) is a federal anti-discrimination statute that provides comprehensive civil rights protection for persons with disabilities. Among other things, this legislation requires that all students with disabilities be guaranteed a learning environment that provides for reasonable accommodation of their disabilities. If you believe you have a disability requiring an accommodation, please contact the Disability Support Services in Room 168 of the Clark Student Center, 940-397-4140.
