Course Overview and Objectives:

This course on Social Problems is designed to give the student a good introduction and overview of a range of social problems both in the U.S. and globally. We will examine inequality (national and international), racial discrimination, crime and prisons, war and empire, and the environmental crisis from a sociological perspective. We will collectively investigate the ideological, socio-economic and structural origins of these problems and their theoretical explanations. We will also examine the U.S. criminal justice system and the effects of “getting tough on crime”. Towards the latter half of the course we will examine U.S. foreign policy, empire and war. We will close the course with an examination underdevelopment and a look at an environmental crisis already upon us. This course seeks to impart on the students a critical understanding of these issues and how they impact our global society. Underlying our examination of each problem is a commitment to the ideals of social justice.

Instructional Objectives

1. Think critically about social problems, their origins and solutions and the challenges in implementing solutions.
2. Understand and be able to explain poverty, crime, inequalities, war, and under or mal-development from a sociological perspective. Utilize sociological theories to further develop that understanding.
3. Understand how inequality is structural and leads to unequal life chances.
4. Develop a more accurate picture of the social world, and contemplate ways in which critical social problems could be better addressed.

Basic skills necessary for the assimilation of sociological knowledge and success in this course:

1. Self-discipline: You will need to be sufficiently dedicated and take the time necessary to not only read through all of the assigned material, but to truly learn and absorb it. You will need to ask yourself questions as you read to ensure that you can identify and recall the main points. After reading you should be able to answer questions related to the material and see its personal and/or social/economic/political implications.

You are responsible for knowing the material in the text and other readings according to the syllabus schedule as well as the material covered in class lecture. Chapters should be read by the time the material is covered in class. In this way you will gain more from the lecture, be prepared for quizzes, and reduce the need to cram for exams. To test your own knowledge, you should be able to answer the questions at the end of each chapter correctly.

2. Attend every class. Come prepared and pay attention in class, take appropriate notes according to your best learning style and method. No cell phone or computer use is allowed during class.

3. A willingness to challenge dominant beliefs and perceptions. The sociologist must not fear information, data, and iconoclastic perspectives, which may clash with their preconceptions. The sociologist must not shy away from information, data or truths that may be distasteful to powers that be- or to their own preconceptions.

YOU MAY SELECT EITHER REFLECTION PAPER 1 on Inequality DUE February 13 or Reflection Paper 2 on War and Conflict Due April 11. You will do one or the other, but not both.

Reflection Paper 1:

Global Inequality Reflection Paper: After completing the class readings on national level and global inequality from the past few weeks and viewing the documentary “The End of Poverty?” reflect on the historical, social, political and economic processes that help generate and reinforce the sharp dichotomy between poverty and wealth that characterizes our world. We have seen average real wages remain largely flat in the United States since the mid-1970s, as productivity has risen. Around the world we have also seen inequality in other countries increase. Regarding global inequality, some argue that the gap between countries is increasing and others that it is decreasing. Think through what explains the contradictory accounts? In your reflection paper address the following:

1. Specifically, what processes could you identify that help produce and reproduce this level of inequality? Class discussions and readings that covered theoretical explanations of inequality are critical to adequately address this question.
2. What are some of the consequences (deleterious or otherwise) of this inequality? Are there problems with the argument that states that as long as there is economic growth, we should not worry about inequality?
3. What types of ideological justifications are used to justify or rationalize the transfer of wealth (through cheap labor/ primary goods) from poor countries to wealthy corporations often located in wealthy nations?
4. Given the insights of sociological theories on inequality and what you have learned thus far, what could potentially be done to address inequality and make society more equitable?

5. Finally, think about the critical constructions paradigm presented by Heiner, does it seem odd to you that the level of global inequality that characterizes the divide between the so-called Global North and South does not make it high onto 'our' list of social problems worthy of our attention? Why or why not?

This essay must be supported from evidence from the text, class readings, relevant academic journal articles and/or valid organizational reports such as Oxfam or United Nations University World Institute for Development Economics Research (UNU-WIDER) reports on inequality. Please include a complete bibliography and use correct in-text citations (discussed in the syllabus) at the end of this assignment. The bibliography does not count towards your page minimum.

Write a minimum of three pages, in twelve-point Times New Roman or Arial font, double-spaced. Due September 21st.

Reflection Paper 2:

War and Conflict Reflection Paper. Reflecting on the material covered in this section (Blum chapters, Chomsky, Hagan et al. and Hossein-Zadeh) and on the general thrust of Heiner's work think deeply about the following questions. As Heiner (2016) indicates a problem that affects society often comes to the attention of society not due to the degree of actual harm that the phenomenon causes or reflects nor due to the numbers of those affected (scope) but for other reasons. It is difficult to imagine a phenomenon that creates more harm with greater numbers affected than does war and conflict. (Think of the numbers of people killed in all sides + wounded + property destruction + homeless + infrastructure damage + disease/health impacts + psychological trauma). Why might it be that war, instead of being seen as a major social problem, is often presented as a solution? Think of and identify a particular recent conflict of which the United States was a party. What were the stated objectives of the war/conflict? What other variables/factors helped lead to the war/invasion? Where were there any social or economic sectors that stood to benefit from the conflict? What suffering was caused as a result? Which parties were affected? What was the end result? Finally, why do you think Chomsky opens his discussion of Outlaw States with a reference to the Nuremberg Trials and the Geneva Conventions? What is his message and to whom is he conveying it? Your analysis should identify social/economic/political forces that go beyond attributing conflict to this or that personality. Write a minimum of three pages, in twelve-point Times New Roman or Arial font, double-spaced.

Your Reflection Papers will be evaluated according to the following criteria:

1. Clarity in presenting your argument/addressing the specific questions of the reflection paper. (30% weight)
2. Evidence provided in support of your argument. Do you refer to class readings and/or other relevant scholarly material? (Particularly for Reflection 2) (30% weight)

3. Does your position take into account the complexity of the problem under consideration? Does it account for the various social/economic forces explain the problem. Does it consider alternative explanations? (30% weight)
4. Writing quality. Does the writing reflect good grammar etc. (10% weight)

Article or chapter reviews:

Select an article to review from the required article readings that we have covered in the syllabus prior to its due date. You may NOT select from the textbooks' readings (Heiner) and you may not select just any article off of the internet, but you MUST select from the articles that we have been reading for class. Each article review will be valued out of a total of 50 possible points and should be two full pages in length. Some articles are clearly based on quantitative or qualitative research with the methodology made explicit. For the purpose of simplicity, I refer to those as "research articles" because they follow clearly identifiable research methodologies. Usually research articles are divided into clearly defined 'introduction, methods, results and discussion section. The research articles are Coburn, Hagan et al, Yates 2016, and Dollar and Kray. In this case, you will follow the research article review questions to organize your review. Even though all articles pull on research to build arguments, for the rest of the articles use the 'theory or narrative' based format to review the article. Article reviews must include the name of the article, the major question(s) or research question that the article was asking and the major arguments of the article. The best reviews will reflect that you engaged with the article, and may even include other academic sources that support or disagree with the article's findings. NO PLAIGERISM WILL BE TOLERATED.

Once again: your article review MUST be from the course article readings identified above.

If the article is a research article, the review should answer the following:

1. What is the central research question guiding the research?
2. What methods are used to investigate this question
 - a. How were the data obtained?
 - b. How were the data analyzed?
3. What were the results of the study?
4. Why are these results important?

For theory or narrative based articles answer the following:

1. What is the phenomenon under scrutiny?
2. What is the primary argument of the article?
3. What supporting evidence was provided?
4. Does the theory make sense? Why or why not?
5. Why is it important?

Final Paper

You must write a 5 to 7 page, double-spaced paper that investigates a particular social problem covered in this course. Your paper must explain/show the severity of the social problem (its impact), examine theoretical explanations of the social problem, and examine the ethical dimensions/implications that are connected to the social problem. Any problem selected should have a global or international dimension to it. In some cases, this can be best included by contrasting different countries approaches to the social problem (this works well for issues of healthcare, crime, and forms of inequality) or it may take on a broader global analysis (this may be appropriate for environment, war and conflict, global inequality etc.)

You will have considerable freedom to develop your paper but there are certain rules by which your paper must abide:

1. You must include at least 5 bibliographic references. These must be appropriately cited at the end of the paper. All references must include the authors' or author's last and first name(s), the year published, the title of the article or book, the name of the journal or publisher, and where it was published.

2. To count towards the bibliographic reference requirement, the references must be scholarly. This means they must come from either books of scholars or must be articles published in scholarly journals. If you have questions on this please see me.

3. Your work must include in-text citations. All references must be cited in the text and all work cited in the text must be fully referenced in your bibliography or works cited section at the end of the paper. All quotations of authors must be in quotation marks and the in text citation for quotations must include the page number. All in text citations must include the author's last name and the year the work was published in parenthesis. For example, (Blum 2004) or (Blum 2004: 328) when quoting.

4. In no circumstances will plagiarism be tolerated. A zero will result in this case. This means that you must not copy the works of either your classmates (this is not a group project) or other scholars and pass it off as your own. Honesty and integrity must be upheld in academic work.

Course Policies

Class Participation and attendance:

The attendance and participation of students is vital for a positive and rewarding learning experience for everyone. Your presence is expected and students will be evaluated on their sharing of thoughts and class contribution. You will miss vital information if you are not present and alert in class. In the end it is your grade and your responsibility to know the information in the exams and to incorporate the information from class in your assignments. Individuals that miss class and/or are not engaged during class, tend to hand in poorer work, and do more poorly in exams. Thus, by attending class not only do you ensure gaining these twenty attendance points, but also you increase the likelihood that you will perform better in the other aspects of the course.

You are allowed two absences after which your grade will suffer a 4-point deduction for each day absent. There are a total of 20 attendance points possible. Only under extreme circumstances or university activities that conflict with class will this penalty be waved.

Late Assignments: Late assignments will have 5 points deducted per day late.

Missed exam policy: No missed exams will allowed to be retaken without instructor approval based on evidence (doctor's note, university letter) that indicates the person missed the test due to a legitimate emergency, illness and/or school function. All missed exams must be made up within one week. The exam may also be different than the exam given to the rest of the class, and no bonus question will appear on the make-up exam. No exam may be made up after the week prior to final exams.

Learning Environment Please keep in mind that everyone has a different learning style and we need to collectively keep distractions to a minimum. PLEASE STAY OFF YOUR CELL PHONES AND OTHER ELECTRONIC DEVICES IN CLASS. I will respect you and I also expect you do give your fellow classmates and me that same respect. If you are disruptive in class you will first be given a warning, the second time it occurs, you will be asked to leave.

Show up on time and do not leave early. An early exit will hurt your attendance.

Extra credit: A student may gain extra credit by conducting an additional article review. The amount awarded depends on the quality as assessed by the stipulations under 'Article Reviews'. Extra credit is available only to students who have turned in all of their assignments.

Cell phones and electronic devices: Not permitted during class time. Turn off or silence your cellular telephones before coming to class. Sending text messages is distracting and is strictly prohibited. Laptop use is generally prohibited during class time. No use of iPods or other listening devices will be tolerated. Please focus on the task at hand.

Syllabus modifications: The professor reserves the right to make adjustments or improvements to the syllabus during the semester. You will be notified of all changes.

Cheating, Plagiarism, and Academic Dishonesty:

At no time will any form of cheating or plagiarism of any kind be allowed. Students are attending the university to learn and cannot do so if they do not complete their own work. Academic dishonesty is a serious ethical violation and will not be tolerated. I expect that these standards will be met, and I will hold students to them.

Plagiarism is according to the New Oxford Dictionary is “the practice of taking someone else’s work and passing it off as your own”. This means in academic practice copying someone else’s work and ideas, without quoting and citing as appropriate.

Potential consequences of plagiarism or academic dishonesty include failing the article review, assignment, exam and/or quiz at a minimum. Other consequences include failing the entire course and the filing of the Academic Misconduct Form that will remain on your college records.

Americans with Disabilities Act:

If a student has an established disability as defined by the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADAAA) and would like to request accommodation, that student should please contact me as soon as possible. Any student requesting accommodations should first contact Disability Support Services at 940-397-4140 in room 168 Clark Student Center to document and coordinate reasonable accommodations if they have not already done so.

Campus Concealed Carry

Senate Bill 11 passed by the 84th Texas Legislature allows licensed handgun holders to carry concealed handguns on campus, effective August 1, 2016. Areas excluded from concealed carry are appropriately marked, in accordance with state law.
