Political Protest and Revolutions: This course provides an introduction to the study of political protest and examines the interaction of political dissidents and the regime. The course is designed to meet two objectives: (1) provide students with a factual background in the history of political protest by examining 13 historical and modern rebellions and revolutions and (2) introduce students to key theories of political protest that cover such topics as the collective action problem, repression of the rebels by the state and its effect on rebellion, terrorism as adaptive protest, post-revolutionary regime transition and civil war

Course Objectives: This course is intended to further student development in the following departmental learning objectives.

- Display a broad understanding of American Politics, Comparative Politics, International Relations, and Political Theory.
- Demonstrate an ability to apply the major theories and concepts of political science towards contemporary political phenomena.
- Display critical thinking skills concerning theoretical explanations of local, state, national, and global political processes.

- Evaluate the appropriateness of rival political explanations to contemporary political issues. presentations.
- Demonstrate effective writing skills

Texts:

Revolutions and Revolutionary Movements, James DeFronzo (2014), Boulder: Westview Press.

In addition there are a series of readings that will be disseminated on D2L. The readings are mostly a series of chapters from Jack A. Goldstone, Ted R. Gurr, and Farrokh Moshiri. 1991. Revolutions of the Late Twentieth Century. Boulder: Westview, which is out of print.

Expectations: Students are expected to attend class. Lectures will not reproduce the texts. During lectures, students are expected to behave in an adult fashion: i.e. no note passing, punching, kissing, kicking or other juvenile behavior. Disrespectful behavior towards other students or the teacher will not be tolerated and will result in your removal from the class. Also, please turn cellular phones off during class.

Grading: There will be three examinations. There will be two in-class examinations and one final examination. The format of each is short answer questions and identification of key terms. The highest grading scale will be 90 (A), 80 (B), 70 (C), and 60 (D). The third exam will occur during the final examination period, but will be in the same format as the first and second exam. the percentage breakdowns is as follows:

Exam 1 25 points
Exam 2 25 points
Final Exam 25 points
Research Paper 25 points

Research Assignment: The research assignment is designed to allow students to investigate a historical political conflict and analyze it using the theories covered in class. Students should select a historical political conflict and have it approved by the instructor. After selecting a conflict the students should fully research the conflict and then write a research paper that contains two sections. Section one should present a narrative history of the political conflict describing who fought whom, why they fought, how the rebels mobilized supporters, what the state did in response, and how the conflict evolved and was resolved. Section two should analyze the conflict using the theoretical propositions students gained from class. This section should discuss those theories that students think best explain their conflict.

Classroom Policies: If for any reason you should have to miss a test please inform the instructor prior to the time of the test. Make up exams will only be given for valid excuses supported with the proper documentation. Research papers not submitted by the due date will be considered late and one letter grade will be deducted from the paper grade for each day the paper is late. The privilege of additional work will not be granted.

Disability Policy: Any student in this course who has a disability that may preclude demonstrating fully his or her abilities should contact me as soon as possible. We will discuss the accommodations necessary to ensure full participation and to facilitate education.

Plagiarism: I take plagiarism very seriously and will check your work. By enrolling in this course, the student expressly grants MSU a “limited right” in all intellectual property created by the student for the purpose of this course. The “limited right” shall include but shall not be limited to the right to reproduce the student’s work product in order to verify originality and authenticity, and educational purposes.
