Course Catalogue Description

Specialized studies in philosophy. May be repeated when topics vary.

Course Objectives/Learning Outcomes/Course Competencies

This course provides a close reading of Michel Foucault's History of Madness, a major work of 20th century philosophy that has also had significant impact on fields as diverse as history, psychology, anthropology, criminology, sociology, art history, and literary theory. Major questions we will consider include, but are certainly not limited to: what is the nature of madness? How do definitions of madness change over time? How do definitions of madness impact our definitions of normality? How is madness related to artistic creation, or represented in works of art? Is there a reason to madness, or a madness to reason? We will see that, rather than just one topic among others, questions of "madness" get to the core of our social and intellectual commitments.

The main objectives of the course are as follows:

1. To help students learn and understand the basic issues of western philosophy from both a historical and theoretical perspective.
2. To help students gain familiarity with various pivotal thinkers, theories, and texts in western philosophy and religion.
3. To help students develop their skills in interpreting and critically analyzing texts.
4. To help students develop their skills in identifying and evaluating arguments as well as in formulating arguments of their own.
5. To help students improve their ability to read and write clearly and critically. To help students appreciate the relevance of philosophical discourse in public and private life and to gain a greater understanding of their personal philosophical commitments.

Academic Misconduct Policy & Procedures

Students are expected to uphold the standards of “Academic Integrity” set forth by the MSU Student Honor Creed. The instructor will notify the appropriate authority of any infringement of academic honesty.

“Cheating” includes the unauthorized use of certain information, materials, or devices in exams, papers, or assignments. Additionally, grading will abide by the University’s plagiarism policy. “Plagiarism” includes but is not limited to using the published or unpublished works of another person without recognition, either by paraphrase or direct quotation. The use of materials generated by agencies engaged in “selling” term papers is also plagiarism. A student who makes use of plagiarized material, or anyone that profits from (or abets) cheating, will be DISMISSED from the course. Cases will also be referred to the Dean of Students for possible dismissal from the university.

Academic Dishonesty: Cheating, collusion, and plagiarism (the act of using source material of other persons, either published or unpublished, without following the accepted techniques of crediting, or the submission for credit of work not the individual’s to whom credit is given). Additional guidelines on procedures in these matters may be found in the Office of Student Conduct:

Office of Student Conduct

Grading

Table 1: Final grades for PHIL-2513/4513 will be determined according to the following distribution:

Assignments	Weight
Engagement	30%
Protocol 1	15%
Protocol 2	15%
Final Project proposal	5%
Final Project final draft	35%

Table 2: Grades will be administered on an A-F scale according to the following percentages:

Grade	Value
A	100-90
B	89-80
C	79-70
D	69-60
F	59-0

Protocols

Most Mondays, class will start with a protocol presentation. Protocols will be no more than two pages long (single-spaced) and will provide a detailed, analytic summary of the course progress from the previous week. By the end of the semester, the collected protocols will give a full account of our entire course. The purpose of these protocols is twofold: (1) For the protocol writers, it is a writing assignment that tests student’s ability to present concise yet detailed exegesis of course material beyond text summarization, and (2) for the rest of the class, it draws daily engagement away from a fixation on note taking and refocuses on discussion, creativity, and thinking. By the end of the semester, every student will have written two protocols. Typically, protocols will be written in pairs (i.e., in collaboration with another student in the course). A specific assignment handout outlining protocol requirements in more detail will be provided during the first week.

Final Projects

Students will finish the semester by submitting a Final Project. The broadest objective of this project is to make a complicated philosophical topic clear to a defined audience—regardless of the medium used.

Development of the final project works in two steps. Students will initially submit a proposal for their idea to the instructor and consult with the instructor over the viability of the idea. Then, the student will submit the final product by the end of the semester (deadline is posted on the course schedule). Although rough drafts are not required, students are encouraged to get started on their project early so that revisions via consultation with the professor can be made.

Final Projects can follow either of two broad categories:

1. A Traditional Academic Essay Project

Students have the option to write a traditional essay on a topic of their choosing, provided that the topic is primarily grounded in a direct engagement with some aspect of Foucault's History of Madness. The inclusion of outside, researched sources is required. For topic selection, students are encouraged to pursue a topic that interests them the most. Those who feel "stuck" or unsure about what topic to choose are encouraged to meet with the instructor as soon as possible to brainstorm ideas. Stylistically, some essay projects might take the form of any of the following:

2. A non-essay "multimodal" project

All of the requirements for the traditional academic essay project apply to this non-essay "multimodal" project, except for the fact that the product submitted is not an essay. In other words, all the "work" that goes into an essay (planning, outlining, research, careful argumentation, textual analysis, demonstration of competency over the course material, etc.) remains the same, except the final product takes the form of something other than an essay. Examples might include, but are not limited to, a video production, blog, illustrated essay, podcast, etc. Since each project will be unique, the particularities of these requirements will be discussed on a case-by-case basis with each student.

Extra Credit

No extra credit will be accepted in this course. Students are therefore encouraged to keep pace with the syllabus from the start of the semester to avoid a situation in which extra credit would be desired.

Late Work

Extensions on Final Projects and Protocols will not be granted. Missed Protocols cannot be redeemed after the fact. If highly exceptional circumstances arise that prevent a student from submitting a Final Project and/or Protocol by the posted deadline, arrangements should be made with the professor ahead of time. For all other work due during this course, late work will be penalized by one-third of a letter grade per day late.

Make Up Work/Tests

Assignments more than a week late cannot be submitted and/or made up. Protocols can only be submitted on the day due and cannot be made up retroactively.

Desire-to-Learn (D2L)

Extensive use of the MSU D2L program is a part of this course. Each student is expected to be familiar with this program as it provides a primary source of communication regarding assignments, examination materials, and general course information. You can log into D2L through the MSU Homepage. If you experience difficulties, please contact the technicians listed for the program or contact your instructor.

Attendance

Students are expected to attend all meetings of the classes in which they are enrolled. Although in general students are graded on intellectual effort and performance rather than attendance, absences may lower the student's grade where class attendance and class participation are deemed essential by the faculty member. In those classes where attendance is considered as part of the grade, the instructor should so inform students of the specifics in writing at the beginning of the semester in a syllabus or separate attendance policy statement (see next two paragraphs below). An instructor who has an attendance policy must keep records on a daily basis. The instructor must give the student a verbal or written warning prior to being dropped from the class. Instructor's records will stand as evidence of absences. A student with excessive absences may be dropped from a course by the instructor. Any individual faculty member or college has the authority to establish an attendance policy, providing the policy is in accordance with the General University Policies.

Students in this course are graded on "Engagement," which includes but is not limited to attendance. True, you must be in attendance to be engaged; but attendance alone does not qualify as engagement. "Engagement" includes attendance, participation in discussion and other course activities, active listening, evidence of preparedness, and avoiding distracting/distracted behavior.

There is no distinction in this course between “excused” and “unexcused” absences (with the exception of absences for official university business, like, but not limited to, athletics). Students can miss class for any reason without penalty to their grade, but any student whose cumulative absences amount to three weeks of missed class will be dropped from the course. A student who misses class on the day of his or her protocol presentation (without prior arrangement with the professor) will receive a zero on the protocol and their overall Engagement grade will be reduced by a full letter grade.

Online Computer Requirements

Portions of this course make use of online materials. It is your responsibility to have (or have access to) a working computer in this class. *Assignments and tests are due by the due date, and personal computer technical difficulties will not be considered reason for the instructor to allow students extra time to submit assignments, tests, or discussion postings. Computers are available on campus in various areas of the buildings as well as the Academic Success Center. *Your computer being down is not an excuse for missing a deadline!! If you have any computer problems, a student helpdesk available to you. The college cannot work directly on student computers due to both liability and resource limitations however they are able to help you get connected to our online services. For help, log into D2L.

Instructor Class Policies

Help — Students should discuss any concerns with the instructor as soon as possible. Many of the readings will be difficult, so please ask questions in class for clarification. Office hours are available throughout the week. An appointment is not required for office hours consultation, since they’re “drop-in” hours. Appointments can also be made on a case-by-case basis.

Recordings — Lectures, lecture notes, assignments, etc. remain the intellectual property of the instructor. Students are not permitted to record class or disseminate the content of our class.

Conduct — Actions that diminish the quality of other students’ learning will not be tolerated. Insults, slurs, or attacks of any kind will be grounds for permanent removal from the course. Every student is expected to engage with the course material in a responsible and respectful manner. This course will include open discussion of a diverse array of philosophical ideas. Students are likely to find some ideas popular and others unpopular. That’s normal; and the course does not defend any one philosophical viewpoint. Therefore, disagreement is normal in classes of this nature; disagreement is conducive to positive learning outcomes, regardless of whether this disagreement pertains between texts themselves, between texts and readers, or between students. Disagreement or debate that turns negative, derogatory, hostile, or otherwise demeaning in any way will not be tolerated in class.

Email — Check emails regularly, since that will be the only method by which students are informed about class cancellations or any changes to the course. Your instructor will email you via D2L. Therefore, either make sure you check your D2L email regularly, or change the settings of your D2L inbox to reroute your D2L emails to a preferred email address. When emailing your professors, please ensure that proper etiquette and professionalism is being observed. Always check the syllabus and the course schedule first to ensure that any questions are not already answered there. Your instructor will not respond at length to emails about writing assignments after the assignment has been posted. Please allow 24 hours for an email reply.

Change of Schedule

A student dropping a course (but not withdrawing from the University) within the first 12 class days of a regular semester or the first four class days of a summer semester is eligible for a 100% refund of applicable tuition and fees. Dates are published in the Schedule of Classes each semester.

Refund and Repayment Policy

A student who withdraws or is administratively withdrawn from Midwestern State University (MSU) may be eligible to receive a refund for all or a portion of the tuition, fees and room/board charges that were paid to MSU for the semester. HOWEVER, if the student received financial aid (federal/state/institutional grants, loans and/or scholarships), all or a portion of the refund may be returned to the financial aid programs. As described below, two formulas (federal and state) exist in determining the amount of the refund. (Examples of each refund calculation will be made available upon request).

Services for Students with Disabilities

In accordance with Section 504 of the Federal Rehabilitation Act of 1973 and the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990, Midwestern State University endeavors to make reasonable accommodations to ensure equal opportunity for qualified persons with disabilities to participate in all educational, social, and recreational programs and activities. After notification of acceptance, students requiring accommodations should make application for such assistance through Disability Support Services, located in the Clark Student Center, Room 168, (940) 397-4140. Current documentation of a disability will be required in order to provide appropriate services, and each request will be individually reviewed. For more details, please go to Disability Support Services.
